Field Target Rifle Match
July 17, 2010

We had five shooters for today's match, four regulars and one new shooter. Lane Erickson, who had attended the pistol match two weeks ago, came and brought a preBeeman FBW 124. He had shot a jillion tin cans with it when he was young, and all those cans had their effect. Lane shot a 22/57 for his first rifle score. We are looking forward to Lane becoming a regular at our shoots.

With the Crosman match in the past, everyone brought out their old tried and true air rifles, except for Dave Read who brought his Marauder. Ash Covey caught fire dropping only nine points in the first 6 lanes to position himself 6 points ahead of Dave. However, on the last lane Ash got skunked and Dave caught up to tie the match for precharged rifles.

In the shoot off, Ash lost the coin toss and shot first. Each shooter would shoot four times at the same target. Out of four shots Ash hit the first three and missed the last one. Dave missed on this first shot and then got serious hitting the next three to tie the first round of the shoot off. On the next round the target was shot from further away. Ash alternated missing and hitting to get two for four. Dave missed three straight and conceded the match to Ash. It was our first shoot off for a first place this year and stretching out to eight shots, it added extra excitement to our match.

Let me just add a couple of additional comments: before the match, I asked the match director, Ash Covey, how many lanes we had. He said we had six lanes - each with three targets, three shots each - except two lanes had two targets instead of three. So we were expecting a 48 shot match - which would have been doable for all the PCP's without a refill. Well, we had seven lanes for 57 shots. It seems likely, since Ash was really on fire for the first six lanes, that he was running short of air on the last lane where he went zero for six resulting in the tie. So, after the match, before the shoot off, Ash pumped up his gun. He had just finished when it was time to go, and Dave won the toss - so elected to have Ash go first - figuring his heart rate would be up a bit.

And a personal note: I've not faired well at all with Dave's 'life sized' targets with the 3/8" KZ's - but did pretty well this time around. As I recall there were three of them set up on different lanes - I think I got one once, one twice and one three times. In fact the last one we encountered (I shot with Dave and Ash while Ron showed the new guy the ropes) we all cleared the little bugger. It was a great day. A bit overcast when we started and we were doing great until the sun came out about 10:30 or so - it got rather warm then and the wind picked up - you just gotta love the Idaho weather!
