

WWCCA June 10 2012 Field Target Report

Summer is finally in Michigan and Air gunning is alive and well. For our match today we drew a total of 16 shooters and three others that just came out to see what a field target match is all about.

Our set up on Saturday was made a bit easier due to the dry weather we have had lately and the corresponding lack of mosquitoes helped. On the other hand the 86 degree temperature and lack of any clouds gave us all a nice tan. The four of us invested four and half hours on the practice range and on the ten lane field target course. The Course was set with ten lanes three targets per lane for the sixty shoot total. This month's Troyer rating was 32.6 and the orange tape applied to the backs of the small targets sure helped you locate the kill zone after a few shooters had a go at it.

We completed the match around 2 PM and we made quick work in tearing down and storing the equipment in the shed in spite of having to jump the golf cart again with my car. Half of the shooters stayed and joined us for the lunch after the event to cool down in the air conditioned club house.

Unfortunately we have decided to cancel the Great Lakes 100 in July but we will have our regularly scheduled sixty shot match. We haven't received enough registrations at this time to justify a two day match but we will try for the Great Lakes 100 next year.
